Molecular model of Penzymes:

Penzyme and Germs

- Penzyme cleaves the binding receptors on fungi, bacteria and viruses so that they are unable to bind to the cells of our skin and are washed off the skin.
- However, Penzyme does not kill the microbes. Penzyme is not a toxin for living cells of any kind, bacteria or human cells or any cells at all. The case is different with viruses, in which case the receptors do not grow back, rendering the virus incapable of entering cells and thus in effect the virus is dead.

Testimonies from Users

- M. J: I have been using Dr Bragi Age Management Formulation gel for a short while now and I can see a marked reduction in wrinkles.
- S: I have not used any other facial creams than the Dr Bragi Age Management Formulation gels since I was introduced to it a while ago. I use it under my makeup and am delighted with it. My face is quite beset by wrinkles but with the use of this wonder product the skin of my face has changed for the better in this respect, as well as giving me a smoother, lighter complexion.

Testimonies from Users

- O E B, 49 years: I have had a wonderful experience with your new product, Dr Bragi Age Management Formulation. It gives an unbelievably wonderful effect as a foundation under makeup. The dehydrating effects of the makeup are very much reduced, and the gel keeps the skin smooth, hydrated and full of vitality.
- S O, 43 years: Your cosmetic test product Dr Bragi Age Management Formulation, is the best skin care product I have ever come across. It is the only skin care product I use today. I am particularly happy with how it keeps my skin moist and smooth and instantly clears up my couperose which I always seem to get after the morning shower.
